

Dalmellington

Part I

By Ciarán Handley

28th November 2018

The Road to Taoiseach

Chapter 1

To the guy in Dalmellington who stole 13,000 euro from me

Every chance was given to you to pay back the money you stole, yet even when called out on the theft you ignored the letters I sent to you.

It took me two years of my life to save that money that you stole. You have dragged this out for years. The longer you drag it out, the worse this becomes.

When I come in as Taoiseach I will be making a very public example of you

As an example of corruption in business and how to deal with it. Criminals in suits trying to use law as a weapon for theft.

Barely a day has gone by for years where I do not think of the money that you stole from me and the problems you have caused in not paying back what you stole.

Know that I hold you in contempt you thieving fuck.

There's a storm coming. That storm is me.

The Office

Dalmellington

End of Part I