

Golden Age

Part VIII

By Ciarán Handley

23rd September 2018

Golden Age

Chapter 1

Governments continue to do nothing

So here is the deal. I am denying Golden Age to humanity. The situation not to be reviewed before 2030 unless governments take serious action to make things right.

What do I mean by make things right? The longer the governments drag it out the more serious the problem becomes. I offered key technologies on a platter. But governments weren't interested in working with me. They wanted to take what I offered and more, and then kill me so that I couldn't contest the theft.

I give one last chance now to trigger Golden Age or I walk. Pay me 3.8 trillion US dollars and I will trigger Golden Age to some level at least, with a number of technologies released at my discretion. I may deny the big ones. But I'll release enough to open up the Race to the Moon and Mars.

Why has the price gone up?

Because the longer this drags out and the more governments continue to mess around, the more the price goes up. That's why.

The Forfeit

Let me explain something about honour

I took oath to deny certain technologies, the situation not to be reviewed for a number of years. At my rank of Knighthood that oath is binding. Is there any way that technologies that I have denied could be released before that time without me breaking my oath?

Yes. Just one way. Things would have to be made right. If the situation was made right to a certain level then this would satisfy honour. It would enable me to trigger Golden Age to at least some level.

Pay me the 3.8 trillion and I'll release something. But at my discretion. My contributions to humanity far, far exceed this figure already anyway. Even just considering the cities which were not levelled in nuclear blasts alone would be worth a few shillings. (The American and British governments know of these. But they both still tried to kill me this last week anyway. They truly have no honour. None.) Let me ask them something: the next time some terrorist tries to detonate a nuclear warhead in their cities, who is going to stop him if I am gone?

So that is my proposal. 3.8 trillion US dollars and I'll trigger Golden Age to some level at least. I imagine the bulk of that money should come from America, seeing as they are the ones who fucked things up in the first place.

Redeem your honour, America. Humanity faces annihilation because of you. Do the right thing and allow me to trigger the Golden Age that you blocked.

If the deal does not go ahead I will continue to release a certain number of documents

This will focus on exposing corruption. Such as America's Global hacking campaign with the NSA and Microsoft, where every version of Microsoft Windows in the last five years or more allows the NSA to read your hard-disk and upload information from it. (All those messages you get on your computer while it says "please do not switch off your computer while we perform upgrades". If you ask a computer programmer to monitor the flow of information during that process you will see that the bulk of the information is being sent from your computer to Microsoft, rather than from Microsoft to your computer. It's something the NSA set up with Microsoft to enable them to read people's computers. It is a key way in which America maintains technological advantage. By Industrial Espionage – lifting technology and other ideas from competitors and other governments.)

I'll write about business and corruption. I will expose the pharmaceuticals and I will write about Honour and Knighthood. And I will continue to write of the concept of men being women to women. But I will deny Golden Age.

I'll write for as long as I can. Once I am compromised then it is over anyway. If I am compromised, and I am right on the edge now, then it is over for humanity. We all get wiped out.

Until such time I will continue writing for as long as I can.

*If the deal for 3.8 trillion goes ahead then I will trigger
Golden Age to some level at least*

At my discretion. I'll trigger the Race for the Moon and Mars and I'll set up an Irish Space Agency in the Irish Language.

Until such time I am denying Golden Age to humanity.

The situation not to be reviewed before 2030.

If we manage to survive that long.

Hitler Finds Out He Was Not Accepted Into Hogwarts

Golden Age

End of Part VIII