

The Day the Earth Stood Still

Part II

By Ciarán Handley

22nd September 2018

The Day the Earth Stood Still

Chapter 1

It is not necessarily the case that only on the precipice do people find the will to evolve

It depends on the people.

The more Enlightened the person the earlier he will find the will and take action to avoid going over the precipice.

People who are asleep will go right to the brink before they finally wake up.

Others who are completely asleep or oblivious, like Donald Trump and much of the American Administration, would go right over the brink rather than take any action to avoid destruction.

If people had been awake they could have not only avoided going near the brink but they could have helped launch the greatest Golden Age in history instead

The incompetence of those who have brought us to this point is something I have not been able to understand. I have spent years trying to understand this as they bring us ever closer to the brink. But the level of incompetence demonstrated is not one I can comprehend. No-one is that incompetent. Or so I would have thought. It is not possible to be that incompetent.

And yet it is the case. I see it but I do not comprehend it. I see the folly. The madness. The blindness. But at no level can I comprehend it.

I am the great genius in history and I have the highest level of Enlightenment in history. Yet I must pander now to Donald Trump, who by some quirk of fate finds himself sitting in the chair of the Presidency of the United States of America at the most critical point in human evolution. Whether we go to nuclear war or not is now dependant on whether I can get it through to this man that Golden Age is a preferable option to the annihilation of all life by the Borg.

For me this is pretty obvious. But I already see it.

The problem is that I need Donald Trump to see. It. How did it come to this? Of all the great people on this planet, that whether we go to nuclear war or not is now contingent on one who is incompetent to the level that he would chose nuclear war over Golden Age.

Donald, wake up!

I will without hesitation trigger a nuclear strike to break the hold of the collaborators in America rather than let all life come to an end on Earth.

Remove the block on me. Remove the block on Golden Age.

*We have come five years into the future.
History has no record of Golden Age.*

It never happened. It was blocked in 2013 by America's alliance with the Small Greys.

*Yesterday's Enterprise*

The Day the Earth Stood Still

End of Part II