

The Day the Earth Stood Still

Part III

By Ciarán Handley

22nd September 2018

The Day the Earth Stood Still

Chapter 1

We need to understand a principle here

For this principle is not understood by governments. Certainly not understood by America.

Let us illustrate the principle first. Then we will discuss.

Avatar, Thanator Chase

The principle is in understanding why Jake jumped.

Why did Jake jump?

Ordinarily that would be a crazy decision. Jake made a blind jump without being sure of what was below. Perhaps there were rocks? Or he may hit off the cliff-face on his way down? Perhaps he would be pulled under by the power of the waterfall?

There may have been creatures living in the water beneath. Monsters. Creatures that could attack him? And so forth. So ordinarily it would be crazy to make such a jump.

So why did he do it?

Because of the Thanator chasing behind him.

It is that simple.

*When faced with two catastrophic choices, choose the least catastrophic

That is the principle.

Now let us bring this back to understanding nuclear war

The delays to Golden Age and the problems caused by targeting the Resistance and making alliances with the Borg have caused problems to such an extent that we now face absolute certainty of annihilation if we do not break the deadlock. Either we trigger whatever we can of Golden Age and find some path back to launching Golden Age properly or we face certainty of annihilation by the Borg. That is certainty. Only if humanity moves towards Ascension do we have any chance of standing against the Borg. Only with the strength that is gained through achieving the Tao can one stand against the Borg. The Jedi could stand against them. None other.

So the scenario is this: either we find a way to get back on track for Golden Age or we face certainty of annihilation

That is the first point.

Now, point number two.

If governments do not allow Golden Age to proceed then the only way to force the situation is with a nuclear strike

Why is this so?

It is to do with Barack Obama's deal with the Small Greys in 2013.

I contacted Barak Obama in early 2013 via the Borg neural implants

At the time I did not know that he was collaborating with the Borg. I approached him in good faith saying that I had the knowledge to launch Golden Age. Was America interested?

Little did I know that he was in league with the Borg. This was the betrayal.

Saruman the White

It did not take long to see that there were serious problems with Barack Obama, but I did not know for quite some time that he was behind what had happened

Even when Golden Age was blocked in 2013 I did not know that he was behind it. With the blocking of Golden Age in 2013 I spent eight months trying to track down what had happened. Of those involved in trying to trigger Golden Age, no-one knew what had happened. It took me eight months to trace it to Barack.

I traced it by hacking Borg network after network, trying to access the logs of what had happened. Eight months it took me to find out it was Barack who had blocked it.

He is Baltar. In Battlestar Galactica there was one called Count Baltar. One who was entrusted by humanity but who sold out humanity to the Cylons – the Small Greys – in the pursuit of personal power. Barack Obama is Baltar.

Barack knew that when I found out that it was he who had betrayed humanity that I would kill him instantly. In order to protect himself he made a deal with the Small Greys in 2013. To protect himself and other key collaborators.

Barack and other key collaborators are being monitored at all times by Borg computers via their implants. If I kill them then it immediately triggers a Borg weapon of mass destruction. Barack set up this deal with the Small Greys in 2013 in the belief that using humanity as a human shield would protect him and other key collaborators from being taken out by me once I found out that they were collaborating with the Borg.

The conditions of that deal with the Small Greys are very specific. It is how Barack Obama set up the deal.

There is only one way I can take out the key collaborators without triggering the Borg weapon of mass destruction. And that is with a nuclear strike. If I take them out in any other way then it triggers the Borg weapon of mass destruction.

Not all collaborators are protected in this way. Only the key people are. I have been hunting collaborators for years. As I find them – they are mostly centred in the NSA – I kill them instantly. But the key collaborators I have not been able to touch because of Barack Obama's deal.

How is it that I take out the collaborators?

Because I got this working. America tried to get it to work but they couldn't. However I am an X-Man. They did not get this to work. But I did.

The Men Who Stare At Goats

You see there is a war raging between humanity and the Borg. I lead the war from humanity's side. I am John Connor. I lead the Resistance. But some humans have chosen to align themselves with the Borg. Blinded by their greed they accepted the Small Grey technologies without question and one by one they fell into darkness.

That puts the collaborators and the Resistance on opposite sides in war.

The Resistance fights for humanity against the Borg

The Collaborators align themselves with the Small Greys and use their technology against humanity. Assimilation technology. Because of the technological advantages it gives them.

Such as the ability to steal technologies by lifting that information straight from people's minds.

Now, coming back to the threat of nuclear war

Nobody wants nuclear war. Just as I am sure that Jake Sully did not wish to jump off that cliff. But when faced with two catastrophic choices, choose the least catastrophic.

Faced with a choice between a leap of faith over the cliff and the certainty of being killed and eaten by the Thanator, choose the least catastrophic option.

Make the jump.

Faced with the certainty of annihilation by the Borg – which is where we are now if we cannot break the deadlock – or nuclear war, then chose nuclear war. It would kill many. But it would break the deadlock from the collaborators and allow the Resistance to take the actions necessary to avoid the annihilation of humanity.

No-one wants nuclear war.

But I will without hesitation initiate a nuclear strike against the collaborators to break the hold if there is no other option to avoid the annihilation of all life.

That is the position we find ourselves in now.

We are almost out of time.

Donald Trump – you may not have created this problem. But you have inherited it. Break the deadlock. Let me trigger what I can of Golden Age. Please do not block humanity from Golden Age. Please do not force nuclear war.

*Barack Obama, you are pretty charismatic.
I'll grant you that.*

But charismatic means the ability to influence people. To get people on side. It does not mean that one is influencing them in a positive direction. Hitler was charismatic but was this a good thing?

It is not enough to be charismatic, Barack. Not enough. If one is going to influence people then one must ask whether that power to influence is being wielded for good or for ill? To enhance or diminish? To lift up or to bring down? To help or to hinder?

If we survive annihilation then history will record you as one of the greatest traitors in history, Barack. You are Baltar.

This one I am dedicating to you.

Saruman will rock you

The Day the Earth Stood Still

End of Part III